

Figure S2. The distribution of edges per node in the network show power law distribution. Majority of nodes have few edges, while a few nodes (i.e. hub genes) account for a large number of edges. To generate the graph, number of edges per node was calculated, then nodes (N=749) were grouped according to their number of edges and the graph was generated by plotting groups by their frequencies.